#PrecisionMatters

Show your support for Breast Cancer Awareness Month - Come dance with us!

Join Agendia and the Tigerlily Foundation for an easy and fun, professionally-choreographed flash mob dance routine at the steps of the Lincoln Monument.

Now in its second year, breast cancer survivors, thrivers and their friends and family will gather in Washington, DC to perform a seemingly impromptu dance routine to P!nk's "Raise Your Glass" accompanied by local dance teams.

If you're in the Washington, DC area on Saturday, October 27, come along to take part or cheer us on!

When:

Saturday, October 27, 2018 - Meet at 11:30 AM
Dance will be performed at Noon

Where:

Steps of the Lincoln Memorial, Washington, DC

What to wear:

A pink top, black leggings
A special T-shirt will be available for the first 75 participants

Learn the dance:

Master the steps to "Raise Your Glass" by P!nk! Our choreographer guides you through the routine shown from the front and from the back in these fun video tutorials.

You can also download a step-by-step walk-through of the routine here and learn the words here.

What is a flash mob?

A group of seemingly unconnected people going about their daily lives, who assemble suddenly in a public place, perform a pre-planned act or dance for a brief time, surprising and entertaining passers-by whilst having a blast! At the end of the dance, they quickly disperse.
